Based on Luke 16:19-31

Is it not hell to have too much
And never ever quite enough
Always wanting for something more
And oh what hell to have it all everything but everything but
Your every deepest greatest need

And what if heaven might be this:
That less is more and more is less
When those with most and those with least
Can share the feast together feast
And what if sharing we might feed
The hunger of our deepest needs

And oh what heaven oh what bliss
To find each other in the feast
To learn to share the feast to share
And in our sharing learn to care
To find we all share at our core
A burning thirst for something more

Is it not hell when all you have
Is yours alone and all you have
Is all you have and nothing more
Would that not have you wanting more
The greatest wealth is meagre fare
A lonely feast if not to share

And what if paradise were found
And what if riches should abound
When all together most and least
We give our all to host a feast
We give ourselves and share our all
Would we not all then have it all
